

WASHINGTON'S PART

in the

WORLD WAR.

Dedication

PON the summit of a lofty hill commanding a view of Washington, Pennsylvania, are set four dismounted field pieces. These cannon mark the angles of a square from which rises in solemn grandeur a single shaft of sandstone, and hard by is a cemetery where every thirtieth of May soldiers' graves are decorated by relatives and friends of those who fell in the strife for union and for domestic freedom. As the seasons come and go, by sunlight and by moonlight, the shadow of the monument, like Glory,
"marks with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead," while to us all the monument itself stands as an unwearied sentinel, who, in the name of love and of self-sacrifice, gives an eternal challenge to every monster born of love of self.

In the same spirit, so long as it may survive, this volume is dedicated to all the soldiers of our great Republic, and especially to those heroes of immortal fame, who in the World War gave, or were ready to give, all that anyone can give, that government of the people and for the people and by the people may not perish from the earth.

W. C. McCLELLAND.

Total 150,560,000

A tabulation of the estimated casualties of the American Expeditionary Forces shows:

Killed in action (including 381 lost at sea)	33,754
Died of wounds	13,570
Died of Disease	23,396
Died from accident and other causes	4,952

Total deaths	75,672
Wounded in action	210,984
Missing in action (not including prisoners released)	2,370

Total of above 289,026

The mobilized forces of the United States were	4,272,521
The mobilized forces of the Allies were	39,676,864
The mobilized forces of the Central Powers were	19,500,000
The mobilized force of the world war was	59,176,864
The Allies paid a death toll of	4,810,000
The Central Powers paid a death toll of	2,750,000

The cost in money to the Allies was	$120,500,000,000
The cost in money to the Central Powers was	66,250,000,000

The United States entered the war on April 6, 1917. At the time the United States entered the war, a statistician said:

"There is required of the world every month an amount of money double that expended during the entire Russo-Japanese War, which lasted eighteen months. It means that the Boer War is being concentrated into every eight days of this war. It means that the Franco-Prussian War is being fought over and over again, its entire cost being compressed each time into a space of three weeks. It means that our Civil War—hitherto the greatest conflict in the world history—is being duplicated with such intensity that a counterpart of the four-year struggle between the North and South is reproduced every fifty days."

The sum of money expended since the middle of 1914 has been more than double the combined money expenditure for all other wars that occurred since the beginning of history. The combined direct cost of the world's six greatest military struggles in the 125 years preceding this war was $21,000,000,000.

One of these raged through a period of twenty-one years. Another lasted four years. The twenty greatest wars in the century and a quarter preceding 1914 cost directly, $25,000,000,000. That sum measures the cost of five months' fighting at the present rate of expenditure. The following table compares the cost of the greater wars:

Napoleonic Wars, 1793-1815	$ 6,250,000,000
Crimean War, 1853-1856	1,700,000,000
American Civil War, 1861-1865	8,000,000,000
Franco-Prussian War, 1870-1871	3,500,000,000
South African War, 1900-1902	1,250,000,000
Russo-Japanese War, 1904-1905	2,500,000,000
The World War, 1914-1918	200,000,000,000

Immortal Tribute

G. H. Q.

American Expeditionary Forces,
General Orders No. 204:

France, Nov. 13, 1918.

The following communication from the Commander-in-chief of the Allied Armies is published to the command:

Grand General Headquarters of the Armies,

Nov. 12, 1918.

Officers, noncommissioned officers,
soldiers of the Allied Armies:

After having stopped the advance of the enemy, you have for months, with confidence and unrelenting energy, attacked him unceasingly.

You have won the greatest battle of history, and saved its most sacred cause, the freedom of the world.

Be proud!

You have decorated your standards with immortal glory.

Posterity will forever thank you.

F. FOCH,

Marshal of France,

Commander-in-chief of the Allied Armies.

THE following pictures and records are those of men of Washington and Canonsburg who gave their services to their country in the time of need.

Council of Medical Defense of Washington County, Pennsylvania

IN the spring of 1917 the writer was asked to assume the chairmanship of the Washington County, Pennsylvania, division of the Council of Medical Defense, and county directorship of sanitation, with the privilege of selecting his own committee.

This offer was accepted, and the following committee was selected:

Dr. J. N. Sprowls, of Claysville, Pa.

Dr. J. B. McMurray, of Washington, Pa.

Dr. C. F. Linn, of Monongahela, Pa.

Dr. Jos. Hunter, of Charleroi, Pa.

Dr. Jas. E. Wilson, of Canonsburg, Pa.

This committee was soon diminished to five members by the departure of Dr. Linn with the 10th Pennsylvania Regiment.

Very soon a campaign was inaugurated for volunteers to the Medical Reserve Corps, and Majors Codman and Jump, Captain McLean, and Lieutenant Gans, of Philadelphia, came to Washington, met the physicians of the county, and presented the cause.

At that time several physicians signified their intention of entering the service. At this time to the best of my recollection two men were in the service, Dr. C. F. Linn of Monongahela and Edwin Linton of Washington, who enlisted with the Hospital Unit sent out by the Johns Hopkins Hospital, of Baltimore.

In May, 1917, Dr. H. P. Prowitt of Washington enlisted and left Washington for Fort Oglethorpe.

Later in the same summer Dr. R. A. Stewart of Washington enlisted and was ordered to the X-ray school in Pittsburgh.

In the spring of 1918 another campaign was started for physicians. Major Reed of Cincinnati came to Washington and presented the matter to the profession, and a few weeks later a general meeting was called by the committee at which time Dr. W. F. Donaldson of Pittsburgh, president of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, made an address, also Mr. R. G. Miller of Washington. The committee then took up a systematic canvass of the county and many physicians were enlisted.

The result of this canvass will be seen by consulting the Roll of Honor of this Society which had the highest percentage of medical men in the Army and Navy of any county in the state of Pennsylvania.

In the spring of 1918 the Volunteer Medical Corps was organized, and in this branch of the service Washington County was also well represented. To this organization only those practitioners who were past 55 years of age, or those who had been rejected by the Medical Reserve Corps on account of physical disability, were eligible.

This corps gave good service during the fall of 1918 in fighting the epidemic of Spanish influenza which scourged this country.

To the best of our knowledge but one man from our profession and county has lost his life in the service, Dr. Edwin Linton, son of Prof. Edwin S. Linton, of Washington and Jefferson College. Shortly after reaching France Dr. Linton developed scarlet fever, from which disease he died.

Sixty-seven members of the profession went out from Washington County at the call of their country, and twenty-three others were members of the Volunteer Medical Corps.

March 20, 1919, by order of Council of National Defense the committee was discharged, with the thanks of the Council.

A. E. THOMPSON,

America's Position in World Politics

THE recent achievements of American soldiers, including those whose names and faces appear in this volume, have produced a very noticeable change in the mental attitude of Americans toward questions of world-wide importance.

The international politics of European nations and their resulting controversies had seldom awakened a very deep and never a very abiding interest among the American people. Even our own foreign policies had not roused an interest equal to that taken in such questions as the tariff or, in its day, in the free coinage of silver, which, of course, are questions which we settle for ourselves and without negotiations with foreign powers.

This popular indifference to foreign questions has disappeared. Two million men have crossed the Atlantic under arms, and 2,000,000 more have been preparing to go, to aid in the settlement of questions arising out of our relations with a foreign country. Perhaps it would be truer to say that the questions that involved us in the war were originally questions which arose between foreign countries and with which at the outset we were not concerned.

In the homes of 4,000,000 men indifference to questions of foreign politics has become impossible. Our foreign relations will hereafter be discussed universally among the people, and every man will have his own opinions about them, as in times past every man had his own convictions and a certain degree of familiarity with the conventional arguments upon the tariff question.

It is not true, however, that America has only recently entered upon world politics or that we have until lately been without influence in foreign affairs. America has played a greater part in the world than even our own people ordinarily know.

We have even played a large part in the development of the laws of nations. The governments of the world, including the great powers of Europe, have willingly or unwillingly followed our lead in many things and we have generally led in the direction that makes for real progress toward higher standards in international affairs.

In the development of the law of neutrality few nations have had more influence than the United States, and this is true whether we speak of our attitude in demanding the rights of a neutral or in recognizing and assuming the duties of a neutral toward nations at war. A hundred and fifty years ago neutrality was hardly even a name. Powers that were at war did not willingly permit other nations to do anything that would interfere with the operations of the belligerents. Neutrals had few rights. On the other hand it is also true that the neutral had few duties. In the war of American independence George III rented Hessian soldiers from little states, and the little German principalities that furnished them were nevertheless considered neutral. The Hessian troops marched across the territory of Prussia to the ports from which they embarked for America, and the law of neutrality did not require Prussia to interfere with them. It is said that Frederick the Great expressed his contempt for the whole procedure by imposing upon every Hessian soldier in transit across Prussia the cattle tax at the rate per head which he imposed upon live stock driven across Prussia to be sent from the same ports in foreign trade.

The first full recognition of the obligation of a neutral to prevent upon its own territory acts by one belligerent which would be injurious to the other was in President Washington's proclamation of neutrality in 1793. Edmond Genet, the French minister to the United States, was fitting out privateers in this country to prey on British commerce and recruiting troops here to serve with the French armies. Public opinion justified what the French minister was doing but Washington issued his Neutrality Proclamation and took measures to prevent the arming and equipping of vessels and the recruiting of soldiers for use against Great Britain. He made so strenuous an appeal to the French government that Genet was recalled, and French consuls who had undertaken in American cities to set up French prize courts to pass upon captured British vessels were removed.

The position taken by President Washington influenced Congress, which in 1794 passed an act forbidding Americans to enlist in the forces of a foreign power and prohibiting other acts in violation of the neutrality of the United States.

Later other governments recognized and assumed the duties of neutrality set forth in Washington's Proclamation and it became manifest that the moral influence of the United States, a newborn nation, had grown powerful and effective.

For more than twenty years the war in Europe continued and the United States twice became involved in the struggle. In 1798 it was a naval warfare against France, growing out of French interference with American shipping. In 1812 it was war both on land and sea against Great Britain, a war which, like the naval war of 1798, grew out of the greater conflict in Europe. During this time a body of precedents grew up in American practice and a few years after the restoration of peace the American doctrine of neutral obligations was codified and enacted into law by what is still known as the Neutrality Act of 1818.

The conduct of the United States in this period from 1793 to 1818 proved to be the leading if not the determining influence in the development of the law of neutrality which was recognized and accepted by the principal nations of the world. In 1819 Great Britain passed her Foreign Enlistment Act, which British statesmen declared was based upon the American Act of 1818. With some changes it remained the British law until after the Civil War in the United States and the development of the controversy over the so-called Alabama Claims, when it was amended and strengthened by the Act of 1870 in order that Great Britain might have upon her own statute books laws that would enable her to meet the increasing obligations of a neutral under the conditions of modern warfare.

Another example of the influence of the United States in the development of international law is found in the codification of the customs and usages in land warfare. The atrocities and barbarities of the wars of the Middle Ages had been discountenanced by military orders under the increasing influence of humane feelings. Wounded enemies and prisoners were no longer slaughtered. The civilian population of the enemy country was not massacred as in earlier times and their property was not subject to indiscriminate looting. Many customs and usages had arisen to diminish the ferocity of earlier wars. The first attempt, however, to reduce these customs to a definite code of rules was made by Francis Lieber in 1863. The code which he prepared for the Union armies during the Civil War was published as a military order governing the conduct of troops in the field, and became the military law of the United States. As in the case of the Neutrality Proclamation of President Washington and the Neutrality Act of 1818, European nations followed the example of the United States. While they did not adopt precisely the same code, the military manuals, issued by European governments soon after the Lieber code had been published here, gave very definite evidence of its influence. They were based upon the same customs and usages of war, and that which had rested upon no firmer foundation than changing practice was now made more stable and practically uniform. In the two Hague Conferences of 1899 and 1907 the treaties which adopted rules for land warfare were based upon these manuals, and the influence of the American code of 1863 was clearly evident in what had now become the established law of the world.

It is true that with the outbreak of the present war the official announcements of the German imperial government, to the effect that military necessity justified a disregard of all these rules, had a shocking effect. In some respects, as for example in the use of poisonous gases, Germany's enemies found it necessary to use methods of warfare previously adopted by Germany which were out of harmony with the standard which it had been supposed all nations had reached. A nation of great military strength, with a doctrine of "absolute warfare" which freed conscience from most of its restraints, had ignored the moral sentiments of mankind. Our confidence, however, in the progress of civilization is at least partially restored when we remember that mankind rose up against lawless Germany and asserted that moral standards must be preserved at any cost.

It was Germany's lawless attacks upon American ships and lawless destruction of American lives that brought the United States into war. Having once entered upon it we of necessity became interested also in other issues and are playing a large part in the efforts that are now being made to reestablish the world upon sure foundations. It is to be hoped that now, as in the past, our influence will be for righteousness that we may be powerful in defending the rights of neutrals and in limiting the privileges claimed by belligerents. It is to be hoped, too, that we shall not forget the obligations that rest upon the powerful, as well as the neutral, and that we may be willing to bear our share of responsibility in restoring and rebuilding an almost ruined world and in promoting peace among the nations.

The Washington Board of Trade and the World War

SOME communities have Boards of Trade that exist in name only. Washington, in having a real organization to step to the front during the war, was fortunate. Officers and directors of the Washington Board of Trade, and every member of it, were untiring in their loyalty to the nation and generous in their sacrifice of personal advantage for the stimulation of the community's war record. Much of the success attending war work in Washington was due to the unqualified backing of this organization.

Its officers were John L. Stewart, president; J. W. Warrick, treasurer; Byron E. Tombaugh, chief of civic bureau; B. F. Mevay, Jr., chief of industrial bureau; T. D. Vera, chief of business men's bureau; R. L. Munce, chief of agricultural bureau; J. F. Curran, chief of traffic bureau; C. O. Hanes, managing secretary, and Russell L. Condit, assistant secretary. The directors were Calvin R. Allen, Frank H. Berthel, J. F. Curran, John H. Donnan, H. B. Duncan, Harry A. Jones, J. L. Lockhart, M. W. McCune, T. H. McNary, H. F. Mevay, R. L. Munce, Louis Ochs, G. G. Oliver, T. C. O'Rourke, Lewis M. Paul, Ben Reynolds, John L. Stewart, Byron E. Tombaugh, T. D. Vera, Boyd E. Warne, and John W. Warrick.

To catalogue the manifold activities of the Board of Trade would be to repeat the list of civic accomplishments during the war period. Nothing worthy but what was sanctioned and supported by the Board and its various bureaus. The Community Building, owned by the Board, was practically turned over to the government and the local war activities. In it were located the offices of the Food Administrator, the Fuel Administrator, the Internal Revenue Collector, and many civic war-work societies. From it was displayed the Community service flag, dedicated July 4, 1918, with 1,073 men in service, and representing at the close of the war 1,432 men with the colors.

The War Savings stamp campaign of 1918 was given the active support of the Board of Trade and mainly through this aid was the local quota surpassed. The Board arranged for farewell celebrations to each of the 24 draft contingents that were inducted into service. Each selective was presented with some funds raised in the large Board flag. A benefit Hippodrome and benefit Style Show were held in January and March, 1919, at which nearly $900 was cleared to go towards the entertainment of returned service men later in the year. The magnificent Welcome Home reception on September 18, 1919, was the culmination of the efforts of the Board of Trade.

The most important function of the Board of Trade, however, was the stimulation of war work by the many local industrial plants. Chairman B. F. Mevay, Jr., and his corps of aides on the industrial bureau accomplished wonders in conjunction with the managements of the various plants. The local coal companies brought production up to record-breaking totals and the employes vied with each other in effective work. Many Washington concerns were on a 100 per cent war basis before the close of hostilities.

The Pittsburgh Window Glass company manufactured light armor plate for tractors. The Tyler Tube & Pipe Company made tubes for steamships and locomotive boilers. The Griffith Charcoal Iron mills produced stove pipe and stoves for export to allied nations. The Electric Reduction company extracted by electrical process the ferro alloys of rare ores, the product being used by the government in the manufacture of special steels for armor plate. The Hazel Atlas Glass Company's three plants devoted production to glass food containers. The Jessop Steel Company made light armor plate for tanks. The Findlay Clay Pot Company produced products used in glass melting tanks.

The National Wrought Iron Annealing Box Company made annealing boxes for use by iron and tinplate mills. The B. D. Northrup foundry and machine shop manufactured tank car fittings, refinery supplies and glass molds for industries engaged in war production. The tin plate made by the Washington Tin Plate Company went into packers' cans, condensed milk cans and food containers that carried food to the army. The Duncan & Miller Company manufactured tableware. The Topliff-Ely Company made baby carriages. Paint made by the Capitol Paint & Varnish Company and automobile tubes and tires turned out by the Washington Rubber Company were indirectly essential to the winning of the war. The Highland Glass Company made wire glass and rolled figure glass shipped to France for government warehouses and air service repair shops in the United States. The Beaver Refining Company made great quantities of essential gasoline.

To the coöperation and 100 per cent energy of every organization in Washington much is due. The interlocking organization making this possible was the Board of Trade. Its record is a proud one.

The Liberty Loans

BY LEE K. WARD, *Chairman in Second, Third, and Fourth
Liberty Loan Campaigns*

Liberty Loans	Quota	Subscription
First	None assigned	$1,194,300
Second	$1,631,300.....	1,872,600
Third	1,647,100.....	1,934,150
Fourth	3,261,713.....	4,099,250
Victory	2,335,950.....	2,476,550

The part taken by the people in subscribing, by Liberty Loan workers, and by the banks, in five great Liberty Loans is one of the most important chapters in the history of Washington's participation in the World War.

It is generally acknowledged had it not been for the patriotic response of the people at home in the financing of the war, the great victory which ultimately came to our arms and the arms of our allies would not have been possible.

Only those who were in close touch with the various Liberty Loan Campaigns in Washington and were familiar with the detailed work required in securing subscriptions, can have any idea of the devotion to their task which was the first consideration always in the minds of the hundreds who worked for Washington's success in the Liberty Loans.

Washington was apportioned a very large share of the amounts to be raised by the government because of the fact that our banks carried larger deposits than the average town of like or larger population. This can be better realized when we consider that the quotas for Washington alone were almost as large as the quotas for the entire state, in the case of one or two southern states.

Our people accepted their tasks cheerfully and went to work with a will. How effectively they worked can be noted from the figures at the head of this article. In each Liberty Loan Washington over-subscribed its quota.

No extensive organization was formed for the first and second Liberty Loans in 1917. The first Loan was mostly handled by the banks, although the real estate and insurance men volunteered to canvass the business streets and sold a number of bonds in this way. During the second Loan the nucleus of the organization that worked through the next two Loans was formed and in the second Loan a much larger popular distribution of bonds was affected. In the third and fourth Loans this organization carried on extensive advertising and propaganda campaigns to secure as many individual buyers of bonds as possible. Intensive canvasses were carried out with wonderful results in the number and total amount of subscriptions secured.

The Fourth Liberty Loan campaign opened with a great processional pageant planned and organized by committees that had worked day and night for weeks before. The general committee was composed of T. C. O'Rourke, Chairman, C. S. Caldwell, F. H. Berthel, I. E. Paul, Thos. Stenhouse, John L. Stewart and Wm. W. Reese, with C. O. Hanes as secretary.

The Sub-Committee Chairmen were: Finance, Ben Reynolds; Bands, A. V. Lewis; Industrial, C. E. Frazier; Parade, C. B. McAlister; Chief Marshal of Parade, Col. J. E. Barnett; Reception, Hon. J. A. McIlvaine; Music, J. P. Miller; Speakers, Harry A. Jones; Window Displays, W. A. Proudfit; Arrangements, John W. Warrick; Floats and Banners, S. W. Hall; Publicity, C. O. Hanes.

The parade took place on the opening day of the campaign, Saturday, September 28, 1918, and created wonderful enthusiasm for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

It is impossible on this page to name all those who rendered valuable and unselfish work during Washington's Liberty Loan Campaigns. It is only right, however, to name the principal committee chairmen, most of whom served continuously through the second, third and fourth Loans.

The Industrial Committee, headed by G. G. Oliver and ably assisted by Gilmer Weston, went through all campaigns and reported records of subscriptions by the men of Washington's industries that were little short of wonderful. When the industries adopted for their slogan in the Fourth Liberty Loan, "Double for the Fourth what we bought of the Third Liberty Loan," it seemed incredible that they could succeed. But in every mill and mine the committees went to work with such zeal that in every industry, except one that was handicapped by a strike, the third Loan quotas were doubled and in some cases tripled.

Fred S. Marshall, as Chairman of the Retail Committee; E. S. McLeod, chairman of the Wholesale committee; E. F. Westlake, chairman of the Schools committee; John H. Murdoch and R. A. S. Pollock, chairmen of Office Buildings; Harry A. Jones, chairman of the Four Minute Speakers; Geo. M. Thompson, chairman of Posters and Literature; C. B. McAlister, Newspaper Advertising chairman; Rev. R. B. Cuthbert, chairman of the Church committee; J. W. Wallace, chairman of the Fraternal Organizations; Mrs. Clarence Stevens, as secretary and hundreds of workers all rendered signal patriotic service during the Liberty Loan campaigns.

During the last week of the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign a committee of about one hundred of Washington's most prominent men was organized and directed by Mr. Chas. S. Caldwell in a whirlwind wind-up that put Washington and many nearby townships over the top by large margins. Noteworthy work in securing large subscriptions was done in this wind-up by E. S. McLeod, C. B. McAlister, Walker Brown, J. Alvan Weirich, A. V. Lewis, E. E. Crumrine, Geo. T. Walker, Alex M. Donan, Geo. F. Drury and a number of others.

The Victory Liberty Loan was put over by Mr. Caldwell's committee with just a few days vigorous work, following well-laid plans arranged by Mr. Caldwell. The banks assisted greatly in assuring the success of the Victory Liberty Loan by urging upon their customers the advantages of the Victory Bonds.

No history of Washington's part in Liberty Loans would be complete without a statement of the splendid manner in which Washington's bankers, and all bank employees, met the call of the government and assumed the unusually heavy extra work the Liberty Loan campaigns brought on them. Washington's banks all made splendid records in each Loan and gave full evidence of their earnest desire to coöperate with the government in making the war a success.

THE WOMEN'S PART

The women's part in the Liberty Loans commenced with the second loan. The first loan had been floated with a temporary organization and it was not until the fall of 1917 that the women of Washington were called to the colors. Mrs. L. S. Vowell of Washington was chairman of the women's county organization and by her the county was divided into seven districts, Washington itself being District No. 7. Of the local district Mrs. W. J. Hogue was made chairman with an office force composed of Miss Margaret M. Clark and Miss Flora Williams, and a speakers' bureau including Mrs. Edwin Linton, Mrs. Owen Murphy, Mrs. A. M. Linn, Mrs. Ernest Waltz, Mrs. Norman Clark, Mrs. Charles Crawford, Mrs. J. A. McIlvaine, Miss Stella Weyer, and Miss Mary McClane.

In the second loan the women of the Washington district (which then also included District No. 5) got subscriptions for $481,150; in the third loan they raised $226,850; in the fourth loan the Washington women secured 3,031 subscriptions for a total of $1,354,550; in the Victory loan the total was 1,957 subscribers and $848,850. This magnificent showing did much to place Washington county so high in standing among districts of the Cleveland Federal Reserve area.

Washington women workers in the Victory loan, the majority of whom had served in the preceding drives, were as follows:

Sub-chairmen: Mrs. W. D. Teagarden, Miss Alice Jones, Miss Nannie Sample, Miss Elizabeth Stockdale, Miss Flora E. Campbell, Mrs. Cramer T. Beatty, Mrs. Olive W. Grace, Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. F. J. Scott, Mrs. Harry A. Jones, and Mrs. S. E. Brooks.

The Washington Red Cross Chapter

THE Washington County Chapter of the American Red Cross was organized April 6, 1917. The following officers were elected: Mr. J. R. McCreight, Chairman; Mrs. Robt. R. Reed, V. Chairman; Mrs. Wm. F. Borchers, Secretary; John W. Warrick, Treasurer. Owing to ill health Mr. McCreight's resignation was accepted July 11, 1917. E. Tyler Davis was elected chairman and served until September 6, when he was called for the Officers' Reserve Camp. R. M. Paxton followed Mr. Davis as chairman of the local chapter and served until May 13, 1919.

After organization it was found necessary to open a central office to be used as a headquarters for the distribution of yarn and the receiving of membership. The old Citizens National Bank was vacant at the time and the Directors of that bank very generously donated the use of the building for the purpose. This building was used until late in the fall of 1917 when the office was moved into the basement of the new Citizens National Bank where it is still maintained, free of rent, light, heat and janitor service.

As interest in the work increased auxiliaries were formed throughout the county and under the leadership of R. G. Miller and Professor William L. Moore and their assistants a total of 59 branches and auxiliaries were formed, some of the larger of these forming units working directly under them. The Washington County Chapter, however, did not include Donora or Charleroi which had their own chapters. Charleroi Chapter extending south along the Monongahela River and embracing West Brownsville, which later became affiliated with the Brownsville branch of the Fayette County Chapter.

In addition to branches and auxiliaries throughout the county nine units were formed in Washington, as follows: Business Girls, East Washington, Tylerdale, Beth Isreal, Community, Eighth Ward, Meadowlands, Knights of Columbus Girls, Sixth Ward. These met each week at various places making bandages, hospital garments, etc. Prior to April 6 a small group of women belonging to the Womans' National Preparedness Association had established headquarters in the Armory where they prepared surgical dressings and hospital garments. Upon our organization Mrs. E. E. Crumrine was appointed the head of this department, which office she ever faithfully held. Miss Rachel Warrick was appointed official buyer for the Chapter and also head of the knitting department. Under her supervision the women of Washington and the county painstakingly learned the knitting of socks, sweaters, mufflers, and wristlets.

The First War Fund Campaign of the Red Cross was held in May, 1917, and the total amount subscribed was $68,354.15. Twenty-five per cent of this money was retained by the Chapter for the purchasing of supplies, the balance went to the National Organization for war relief purposes. As the number of men entering the service increased it was found necessary to establish a bureau to look after the interests of the soldiers' families and dependents. William L. Moore of McDonald was appointed head of this committee and he in turn appointed sub-chairmen in different parts of the county to look after this work. Mrs. Olive W. Grace of Washington is in charge of the Home Service work in Washington proper.

During Christmas week of 1917 the first organized drive for membership was begun and a total of 22,000 members were secured, a gain of 12,000 over the number of members secured at organization. At this time began the enrollment of the junior members and the organization of a Junior Auxiliary of the American Red Cross. At the close of the spring term of school 284 schools and one Parochial School were enrolled with a membership approximating 14,000. Classes were organized and the Junior members taught knitting and the making of various articles for the soldiers, and proved a great help in the making and filling of comfort kits.

In May, 1918, the Second Red Cross War Fund Drive was started and at this time $210,857.00 was collected, 75% of the total amount was retained by the National Red Cross and 25% was returned to the chapter, the chapter returning to each auxiliary the same amount in proportion to their subscription—5% of the 25% returned to be used for Civilian Relief or Home Service Work, the remaining 20% used exclusively for war relief work such as the purchasing of materials for surgical dressings and hospital garments. When the shortage of materials formerly used in the making of gas masks became acute the Red Cross was asked through its organization to undertake the collection of walnuts, peach pits and other fruit stones which had been found adaptable for this purpose. Under the direction of Edward H. McCutchen at the Court House, 225 bushels were collected.

The National Organization realized as the war continued nurses would be needed for Camp and Foreign service and a plan was adopted by which the women at home could be trained to give such service as an emergency might demand. Classes in Elementary Hygiene and Home Care of the Sick were started in June, 1917, under the direction of Miss Gainor and Miss Armstrong, superintendents of the Washington and City Hospitals respectively. Classes in First Aid were started at the same time and were in charge of local physicians. In June of 1918 came the call for nurses and our County was asked for five nurses—twenty-one graduate nurses enlisted for service and later in the summer were sent to the various camps. When the appeal for clothing for Belgian refugees came in October there was an immediate response and in less than a month 9 tons of well sorted and carefully packed clothing was sent to New York for shipment overseas.

During the latter part of October, and before the influenza had become serious in our territory, an urgent call came from Division Headquarters in Philadelphia to send as many nurses east as could be spared. Five graduate nurses responded and were sent to the Du Pont Powder Company's works where hundreds were ill. Later, when the epidemic reached Washington, at the Chairman's urgent request, these nurses were returned and were put in charge of the Emergency Hospital opened by the Washington County Chapter of the American Red Cross. When the situation became alarming, at our request three nurses were sent to us from Philadelphia. These nurses were sent to different parts of the county where the situation was acute. A diet kitchen was opened in the Masonic Temple, which was given us for this purpose, and soup, custard, milk, and things necessary for a patient's diet were distributed as long as necessary. The Chapter was very ably assisted by the citizens of Washington who responded generously to the call for beds, bedding, hospital supplies, and contributions of money were sent for the purchasing of necessary hospital supplies, etc. Mention should be made of the splendid work done by our two hospitals, every possible assistance was given by both of the superintendents and only through their splendid coöperation were we able to handle the situation.

In December, 1918, the second membership drive was made, with 20,000 people responding. In April, 1919, another clothing collection was made and four tons of garments were secured for the use of refugees of other lands.

HOME SERVICE IN WASHINGTON

It is to be doubted if any of us will ever again say that all statistics are "dry reading," if we recall the interest with which we read every report of the Washington County Red Cross Chapter, telling how many pieces of surgical dressings and hospital garments had been made, and how many sweaters, helmets, and pairs of socks had been knitted; how we read every name on the lists of draftees going to the Camps, and when the news of the battles began to appear in the papers can we ever forget with what thrilling interest we read over the long, long lists of casualties—with shrinking hearts, perhaps, for fear we might see the name of some boy we knew and loved—but we kept on reading!

I need not say why these statistics gripped the attention of high and low, rich and poor.

The statistics of the Home Service Section of the Washington County Red Cross Chapter will perhaps be a revelation to the general public, because there has been but little real publicity given the work here in Washington, other than that propagated by those who have been benefited by it.

However the fact must not be overlooked that every man, woman, and child who manifested an interest in the great Red Cross organization, whether financially or otherwise, has a share in the credit for whatever has been achieved by it, and it is peculiarly fitting that a place should be given in the archives of the County to the work accomplished by the Chapter in all of its departments.

Home Service particularly needs publicity, because it is a pioneer movement, and cannot be successful to the degree that it should, without the prestige which public recognition brings, and to this end the public should understand its aims, methods, and achievements, not forgetting that it is, after all, a "democratic, neighborly effort to be of real service."

In April, 1918, the Home Service Section was called into action here in Washington, being operated along with the regular Chapter work until July 29 when the chairman was appointed, and the correspondence, relative to the several cases which the Chapter had handled, was passed on to her for the files.

In August, the Chapter put out some posters which gave a very comprehensive statement of the various subjects upon which the Home Service Worker was expected to be informed. These posters read: "Families of soldiers and sailors: IF YOU ARE WORRIED about rent, debts, insurance, sickness, the children, any business or legal matter, any problem; IF YOU WANT TO KNOW about allotments, compensation, War Risk Insurance, how to send mail, ASK THE RED CROSS HOME SERVICE SECTION."

It is altogether probable that some reader is just here asking—"How can she give correct information on all those subjects?" and this is the answer to that query: First of all, there is the red tape, of which so many complain, but without which no un-trained, inexperienced worker could go very far without getting the work "balled up"; then the Division Office supplies a Hand-book which gives explicit directions how to make inquiries about allotments, compensation, insurance, and mail, even giving letter forms to be copied, and telling, not only what to do and how, but also, what not to do and why; then there is to be had for the asking, the advice of the very best lawyers on business and legal matters, of the foremost doctors when sickness comes on, and last but not least, a blank check book for the rents, debts, food, and clothes.

What more could anyone ask in the way of first class equipment, especially when back of this stands the personnel of the Executive Committee of the Chapter, composed of men of the largest affairs, broadest outlook, and may I not add the blindest faith; and then over all the name RED CROSS!

The first four months' work consisted almost entirely of giving information and writing about allotments and allowances, and trying to explain about the delayed mail to parents and wives, and getting their money for them, and the files hold the names of 256 soldiers whose families made inquiries, calling personally at the office, some of them two or more times, and for whom letters were written, either to the War Risk Bureau, the Bureau of Communication, or to the Division Office in Philadelphia.

It may be interesting to know that the Red Cross letter heads are never used for such correspondence, nor does the name of the Home Service Secretary appear thereon, but the letters are written as if by the person making the inquiry, who of course receives the answer, and invariably, almost, the office is called up and the answer reported—"what shall be done about it"—or "when shall I come to see about it," is the next step.

The Home Service was designed to be a "link" between the soldier in Camp or on the Field, and his family at home, and that this design has been carried out by our Section is shown by the telegrams in the files which read something like this: "Wire report for Paris—health and welfare of mother of Pvt.———, follow with letter giving news," or "Wire report for Paris—health and welfare of family of Cpl.——— has not heard since September, follow with letter giving news."

This means to visit or get into communication with the family, getting family news and even bits of town gossip, then wire "all's well," and write the letter, the contents of which being relayed to the boy in France.

In this way many a home-sick or wounded boy has been cheered by thus receiving a message from home, and the heavy heart of a mother or wife has been lightened by word direct from her soldier. Two soldiers have called at the office to thank the "Red Cross" for this service.

Furloughs were much in demand for about a month or six weeks before the armistice was signed, and letters and telegrams came from Associate Field Directors and Commanding Officers requesting verification of "serious illness—wife of Pvt.——— furlough wanted"; here is one answer sent after investigation: "Wife of Pvt. —— able to be at movies last night." This is but a sample of that phase of the work, but some answers brought the desired furlough, as some of Washington's soldiers can testify.

One of the most interesting at the same time the very most discouraging feature of the work is that of securing the unpaid allotments and allowances. It is so interesting because of its influence on the "morale" of both the soldier and his family, and discouraging because of that old, immutable law which makes "big bodies move slowly."

For instance, a wife will come to find out why she is not receiving her allotment. The inquiry will be started in the regulation Red Cross way, and she will be told that it will probably be ten days or two weeks before there will be any results.

Two weeks go by and she gets impatient, and writes for herself to the War Risk Bureau, and in reply gets a "Wife's Application for Allowance" blank, which she fills out and returns. Two more weeks go by, and she again disregards the law about "big bodies" and so writes to the Congressman of the District, or goes to a Notary Public, and makes an affidavit as to her eligibility to her allotment.

In the meantime the Red Cross is getting in its work, obtaining results, and several days after the allottee sends in her affidavit to Washington, D. C., her check appears on the scene, and she forthwith tells her friends that "the Red Cross is a real nice lady, but Mr. —— got her allotment for her."

This is but one example of actual occurrences in our experience.

It has been found that one of the most frequent causes of the non-delivery of checks, is the fact that allottees change their addresses without notifying the War Risk Bureau, and several weeks ago the report came that there were 150,000 checks returned to the Treasury undelivered on this account, and there are in the Washington Files a list of names of allottees who cannot be found, and they are no doubt blaming the Government for trying to "cheat" them.

The reader has decided by this time, that letter writing forms a large and important feature of this work, which is true.

There have been received messages from the Canal Zone, and from Camp Lewis, in Washington, from California, Utah, Texas, Florida, Tennessee, and Massachusetts, all demanding investigation and correspondence or telegrams.

At the request of Commanding Officers and Associate Field Directors, we have assisted in getting the discharges of 38 soldiers.

Some telegrams and the carbon copies of a correspondence, tell the story of a very unjust Court Martial being stopped by our efforts.

A little notice in the papers brought 268 soldiers to the office for the purpose of having letters written claiming the $60 bonus, and if the ethics of Home Service Work did not forbid, the accounts of this bit of work would include some personalities which would add mightily to its interest.

Sixty-three soldiers have applied at the office to have letters written concerning their undelivered Liberty Bonds, their unpaid allotments, and other arrears in pay. Twenty-eight of these were Italians, and four were Greek. There are no carbon copies to show how many Citizen papers have been filled out, but there have been at least ten sent to Washington, D. C.

Every boy who entered the office, manifested a simple, quiet courtesy, and an absolute confidence in the Red Cross, which was a tremendous tribute to it, and an honor to every soldier who came.

One of the highest aims of the Washington Home Service Section has been to keep the record of the Red Cross up to the high standard it holds in the opinion of these men, by giving to them and their families positive help just when they needed it. Twenty-five returned soldiers have been given financial assistance, every one of whom had no work, but were trying to get something to do.

In helping the families of the soldiers the Red Cross's policy of extending service to a family only in response to a request from it, has been adhered to very strictly, and in the eleven months' operation of our Section, forty-one families have been assisted.

If there were fears quieted, and anxiety relieved, such service can be told only by those who received it, and no one more than a Home Service Worker can know of the absolute necessity for sympathetic, prompt, and accurate information and help, during that time when those mothers and wives were compelled to do without their bread-winners and protectors.

Demobilization is going on, and the work of "After-Care" is pouring into the office.

This work, the re-education and employment of the boys who were "wounded for us," is our work, and will add another chapter to Washington's brilliant history of patriotic service.

BY MRS. OLIVE W. GRACE,
Chairman.

PRODUCTION

The production record of the Washington Red Cross chapter is a long one, even though it is similar to the same division of work of countless other chapters in the state and nation. In August, 1916, long before the war, a branch was formed of the Women's National Preparedness Association and some work on surgical dressings, hospital garments, etc., done. Later when the branch merged into the Red Cross chapter the number of workers and the amount of production jumped to totals of vast proportions. At one time ten separate work units were engaged in various places in the city, with the central work rooms and headquarters in the state armory in West Maiden Street. There as many as 225 women were engaged at one time in making surgical dressings. On one occasion in the winter of 1917-18 there were 125 workers when the thermometer registered zero all day. During the influenza epidemic the women worked by special permission with all doors and windows open in extremely cold weather. There were 49 different kinds of surgical dressings made, seven kinds of hospital garments and 17 kinds of refugee garments. In all over 500,000 separate articles were made and shipped by the Washington Red Cross chapter, a record made possible only through the loyalty, patriotism, and industry of all the women of the town.

KNITTING

Not to know the famous Kitchener heel and toe was a rarity among Washington girls and women during the war, so great being the local interest and work along the knitting branch of the Red Cross chapter's work that nearly every woman in the town did her bit. The experienced knitters taught the beginners during 1917 and in 1918 a wonderful production record was made. Over 12,000 pounds of yarn was bought and made up by the chapter during its 20 months of activity, there being shipped to Philadelphia about 17,000 knitted garments, over 2,000 comfort kits, and over 100 afghans and quilts. In addition to this there was sent to each member of Company H, while at Camp Hancock, one sweater, one helmet, and a pair of wristlets. Local members of the Washington & Jefferson and Dartmouth ambulance units were also provided with sweaters and comfort kits. And beginning with the group of selectives leaving April 25, 1918, every man leaving for camp received a sweater, two pairs of socks, and a comfort kit. Many of the men on truck trains were also outfitted. So carefully was the work done and so patiently were all imperfections remedied that before the close of the war the Washington knitters established the enviable reputation of having boxes of knitted goods passed by divisional headquarters without inspection and shipped straight to their final destination overseas or at home.

Activities of Company H., 110th Regiment, 28th Division

THE history of Company H, 110th Regiment, U. S. Infantry, 28th Division, dates back to the days of the Spanish American War. In that war the 10th Regiment earned for itself by its record in the Philippines the name of one of the best regiments in the islands, the Washington company being a unit of the organization. The 110th Infantry, formerly the 10th Regiment, in the great

JOHN AIKEN, 533 S. Main St.—Born May 10, 1879. Served with the National Guards from 1907. Was commissioned captain of Company H, 110th Infantry, 28th Division, and sent to Camp Hancock. He sailed for France May 3, 1918, and on the Vesle, after senior officers had been killed or wounded he was in complete charge of the regiment for two days of active fighting. He himself was gassed. Major Aiken was wounded by high explosive shells during the Argonne offensive, was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel, and had charge of the 110th Regiment from March 15 to April 12 and also at the time of mustering out. He returned to the United States May 11, 1919, and was honorably discharged from service June 9, 1919.

World War won for itself a record of being one of the best units in France. Company H, which was also a part of that regiment, was considered one of the best companies in the regiment, which shows that the reputation won in the Spanish American War had been kept up by the Washington boys of 1918.

After the return of the 10th regiment from the Philippines, it became a civilian organization, and Company H became a civilian company. The regiment became a part of the Pennsylvania State Militia.

At the outbreak of the Mexican trouble in 1916, the 10th Regiment was sent to Texas to help guard the border. Company H then was under the command of Capt. John Aiken. After several months of hard work on the border, the unit returned to Washington.

On Sunday, July 15, 1917, the company was again called into service, when this country declared a state of war to exist between the United States and Germany. After spending two months of training on "Gallows Hill," the local boys were sent to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Georgia, where eight months of the most severe training prepared them for overseas duty.

On May 3, the 28th Division, of which Company H was a unit, sailed for France, landing at Liverpool, England, on May 18. Several days later the outfit crossed the English channel, landing at Calais, France.

At Calais, real experiences of war began for the men. The first night here a German air raid was made. During the night twenty-five planes engaged in battle and the land reports of anti-aircraft guns and the brilliant rays of searchlights, searching the sky, convinced the men that from then on everything meant business. The boys simply would not stay under cover, but wanted to see this unusual sight.

A forced march to a railway, during which many men became exhausted as a result of the heat and hard hiking; a train ride to Senlicque and a forced march to an English training camp, landed the men under British supervision. Here, in eight days the most severe training was received. Besides the training received, the 28th Division was lying in support of the English in Ypres sector.

Then marching for three days, the company arrived in the Forest de Hesdin, near the town of Hesdin, and here awaited the orders which carried them by train to the town of Juilly.

Here further training was received from the French. Here, too, the first real idea of the horrors of war was obtained, when the men saw hundreds of soldiers being brought to the hospital at this place, suffering from wounds, the majority being severe gas cases. It might be interesting to know that in this town was the old university, now being used as a hospital, which Napoleon attended.

By truck train and an eight-hour ride, the company was taken to Vendiers. After a stay here of a few days, the men doing their own cooking, final touches were added for the trip closer to the front line. A woods near the town of Artonges, just a few miles back of the line, was the next home of the men. Here more training was given and a better insight into active warfare was gained.

About two o'clock one morning a report was received that the Germans were breaking through. Packs were rolled and off we hiked to the trenches at the town of Conde-en-Brie, only to return to the Artonges wood the next afternoon. Early on the morning of July 4 the command was again routed out from its bed on the ground, and a forced march was made to Conde-en-Brie. The same report had called them out again.

At Conde-en-Brie, just behind the French, part of Company H lay in the trenches and the other part remained directly behind, ready for action. Once in a while a few Boche planes overhead, and the sight of either a German or allied observation balloon burning, furnished the only excitement until July 14.

"On the night of July 14 or rather the morning of July 15, which is Bastille Day, France's Independence Day, at 12:30 o'clock the German line belched forth the preliminary salvo of what the French afterward described as the most terrific bombardment of the war to that time. One barrage in the Argonne forest later is said to have equalled it. With this bombardment on July 15 began the last German offensive.

"That the French did not exaggerate in their characterization of the barrage was shown later in documents taken later on captured prisoners, in which the German troops were assured of victory and would find themselves unopposed. The reason for this, read these orders, was that the attack was to be preceded by an artillery preparation that would destroy completely all troops for twenty miles in front of the German lines. Paris fifty miles away was awakened from its slumber after its holiday celebration by the sound of that Titanic cannonade and saw the flashes, and pictures were jarred from the walls above the trembling earth."

(The above two paragraphs are taken from the book written by H. G. Proctor, The Iron Division.)

It was here on the Marne river, during the big German attempt to reach Paris, that the Pennsylvania National Guard gained its present high standing in the American army.

We spent six days in this sector, or line, which extended from near Chezy, on the east, to the region of Vaux, beyond Chateau Thierry, on the west. Here Company H lost its first man, "Buddy" McCaffrey. Biddle Long and Paul Perry, of Washington, and several boys in our unit, but unknown here, were wounded at this time.

In giving the next move of Company H the following citation from General Pershing to the 28th Division is pertinent:

General John J. Pershing, Commander-in-chief of the American forces in France, has issued the following general order:

"It fills me with pride to recall in general orders a tribute to the service and achievements of the 1st and 3rd Corps, comprising the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 26th, 28th, 32nd and 42nd divisions of the American Expeditionary Forces.

"You came to the battlefield at the crucial hour of the Allied cause. For almost four years the most formidable army in the world as yet seen had pressed its invasion of France, and stood threatening its capital. At no time has that army been more powerful or menacing than when, on July 15, it struck again to destroy in one great battle the brave men opposed to it and to enforce its brutal will on the world and civilization.

"Three days later, in conjunction with our allies, you counter-attacked. The Allied armies gained a brilliant victory that marks the turning point of the war. You did more than give our brave Allies the support to which as a nation our faith was pledged. You proved that our altruism, our pacific spirit, our sense of justice have not blunted our virility, or our courage. You have shown that American initiative and energy are as fit for these tests of war as the pursuits of peace. You have justly won the unstinted praise of our Allies and the eternal gratitude of our countrymen.

"We have paid for our success in the lives of many of our brave comrades. We shall cherish their memory always and claim for our history and literature their bravery, achievement, and sacrifice.

"This order will be read to all organizations at the first assembly formation after its receipt."

A few days of hard marching brought the men to Viffert, and then to Charley or rather a woods near that town. A few nights here and the men were again hiked closer the lines. Through Chateau Thierry, across the Marne and to St. Eugene, and again the Washington lads were close to the Boche.

One night's stay in a woods, sleeping in the rain—however, not an uncommon thing—and then up and forward again. This time the men were placed much closer the line. Under the cover of darkness, Company H moved up to a front-line position. This was on July 29. Heavy shelling and a few machine gun shots welcomed them. During the night, the order came that "you are going to take that hill in the morning," meaning hill No. 220, near Cierges, Sergy, and Courmont.

In the morning the attack was begun, and it was in making this attack, without artillery aid, that so many Washington boys were killed and wounded. Following repeated infantry charges and artillery fire later in the day, the objective was gained, but with heavy losses.

The following outline is based on information gained from other sources:

The objective in this sector was the town of Fismes, on the Vesle river, one of the largest German munition depots in the Soissons-Rheims sector. Here on the Vesle river Company H gained more honor, and with the honor came also heavy losses. In a woods, in a retired position, parts of the 110th lost heavily as the result of a German air raid.

Such places as La Bonne Maison, Villette, Arcis la Pensart, Abby De'lyny, O'Neilly, Mussey, near Bar-le-duc, and Vaubecourt are mentioned in connection with the severe fighting on the Vesle river.

Thinking they would get a rest, the men were disappointed when the order came to assemble the American forces into the First American Army. As a result the 28th Division was sent to the Argonne Forest, where its hardest fighting took place, with Company H getting its share, but covering itself with glory after ten days of fighting. It is useless to tell of the Argonne Forest, for what the American army did here to dislodge the Hun from his most formidable natural defenses is well known; and Company H did her full share.

About the middle of October Company H moved to the vicinity of Metz to await the drive on that city. When the armistice was signed, they were sent to various places in the Toul area. The division was assigned as one of several to push forward toward the German border to act in support of the Army of Occupation. Several weeks were spent in Germany, a French town, and then the trip for home was begun. The command traveled by rail to Le Mans, the big American embarkation center, and there the men were prepared for the journey to St. Nazaire, and then to the United States.

The division sailed from St. Nazaire, arriving in this country on May 12.

Pennsylvania Council of National Defense and Committee of Public Safety

Washington County Branch

THE Pennsylvania Committee of Public Safety was created in March, 1917, the several county branches being formed soon after. The duties of the committee were many and varied; in fact anything that pertained to the winning of the war and to the maintenance of peace and prosperity at home was within the scope of its activities.

The Washington County Branch was created by the appointment of the following officers: Ernest F. Acheson, Washington, Pa., chairman; D. M. Campsey, Claysville, Pa., vice-chairman; H. B. Duncan, Washington, Pa., vice-chairman; C. C. Johnson, Canonsburg, Pa., treasurer; J. V. Clark, chairman Executive Committee, Washington, Pa.; Warren Jackson, Washington, Pa., executive secretary. The death of Ernest F. Acheson, soon after his appointment, created a vacancy which was filled by the appointment of Col. James E. Barnett of Washington, Pennsylvania, late colonel of the Tenth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, now the 110th Regiment, U. S. A. In August, 1917, Warren Jackson resigned from the committee and Carl D. Schultz of Washington, Pennsylvania, was appointed executive secretary.

The following Executive Committee was appointed and served throughout the war: Ralph M. Allison, Thos. Pickett, John F. Curran, M. W. McClane, Mrs. Edwin Linton, Washington, Pa.; George B. Sprowls, D. M. Campsey, Claysville; Kerfoot W. Daly, Charleroi, Pa.; Joseph A. Herron, Monongahela, Pa.; C. C. Johnson, Canonsburg, Pa.; Joseph A. Herron, Monongahela, Pa.; C. C. Johnson, Canonsburg, Pa.; Jesse P. Miller, L. V. Martindell, Beallsville, Pa.; Edward McDonald, McDonald, Pa.; C. N. Savage, California, Pa.; J. P. Castner, Donora, Pa.; J. V. Clark, Jas. E. Barnett, and Carl D. Schultz, Washington, Pa.

The work of this committee was divided under separate heads which will be taken up in order and the activities of the several departments set forth briefly. Before taking this up, it might be well to say that the committee was merged with the Council of National Defense early in 1918 and appeared under the title of The Pennsylvania Council of National Defense and Committee of Public Safety, Washington County Branch.

The Finance Department, H. B. Duncan, chairman, had charge of the securing of funds to carry out this work. They secured offices in the Lockhart Building, Washington, Pennsylvania, collected the necessary equipment, and placed a stenographer in charge. Five stenographers were used in the order given but the office never employed more than one at a time: Misses Sara Day, Flossie Clutter, Ora Hall, Esther Meurtens, and Ruth Marsh.

The Publicity and Educational Department, John L. Stewart, chairman, had charge of all newspaper work. Articles were sent out from headquarters in Philadelphia for insertion in local papers and in addition about 500 local articles were written and published by the local committee. These articles had to do with everything from instructing the people as to how to conduct themselves during the war to the so-called American propaganda.

The Department of Allied Bodies, Jas. L. Lockhart, chairman, organized all the different bodies in the county. They then worked through these bodies using them in Red Cross, Liberty Loan, and other war work. The response of the different organizations in the county was wonderful and the full volume of their work will never be fully known.

The Legal Advisory Committee, Jas. A. Wiley, Esq., chairman, was formed to aid the soldiers in legal matters.

The Medicine, Sanitation, and Hospitals Department, Dr. A. E. Thompson, chairman, made a survey of drugs, nurses, doctors, and hospitals. This committee organized the entire county during the influenza epidemic, creating hospitals, furnishing nurses and drugs and even delivering them. This was one of the important departments and when Dr. Thompson entered the service, its work was taken over by the general committee. The Red Cross, by its splendid work, aided this department very materially and was a large factor in carrying on this important work of humanity.

The Department of Civic Relief, A. M. Linn, Esq., chairman, was ever ready to fulfill the work for which it was cut out. Fortunately affairs did not progress to such an extent that they were rushed but the spirit and willingness shown by the members of this branch were such that they would have taken care of any call.

The Food Supply Department, J. M. McKee, chairman, worked out the Community Garden idea and aided the farmer in every way possible, even bringing tractors into the county to assist in their work. Hugh A. Day acted as farm manager, placing the boys from the Boys' Working Reserve, who were enrolled under his direction. Mr. Day visited the boys at their work and had the war lasted, was prepared to send out his forces in 1919.

The Motor Transport Department, Geo. B. Sprowls, chairman, made an exhaustive survey of the automobiles and trucks of the county and had them listed for immediate summons should the occasion arise.

The Department of Materials, M. W. McClane, chairman, and the Department of Plants, W. J. Reese, chairman, had charge of overseeing the condition and output of the local industries. They furnished the different plants with information and aided in the drive to naturalize the foreigners.

The Department of Civilian Service and Labor, J. Boyd Crumrine, chairman, enlisted over 300 men for the U. S. Public Service Reserve, the Ship Building yards, and Munition Works. This department organized the county and had enlistment offices in each district. Mention has already been made of the Boys' Working Reserve in another paragraph.

The Department of Volunteer Home Defense Police, Otto Luellen, chairman, organized the Volunteer Home Defense Police of the county. This organization was the largest in the state with the exception of those of Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties. Ten companies and two detachments were formed in the county. One thousand four hundred and twenty-seven applications were sent to the governor and over 1,200 commissions and equipments were issued. The police did excellent work in all emergencies and could always be counted on. A uniform was adopted and every company placed in the hands of a competent drill master.

The Committee of Public Safety was responsible for the creating of the Food Administration, the Fuel Administration, and the Department of Construction and Materials of Washington County.

The Speakers' Bureau, Dr. Wm. E. Slemmons, chairman, worked under the Council and Committee and used its offices for its work.

A Soldiers' Letter Day was selected by the Council and Committee and everyone urged to write to someone in the Service on that day. This was the eleventh of each month and the Service mail was increased throughout the county on that day from twenty to five hundred per cent.

A Secret Service, Harry S. Grayson, director, was established and men placed in every town and hamlet in the county with orders to report back to Washington. Most of the members of this group were taken from the Home Defense Police and their work was of a very high order.

Registration of enemy aliens was made by the Council and Committee, under the direction of the United States marshal of Pittsburgh. Permits were issued to these enemy aliens on recommendation of the Council and Committee.

This brief outline of the work of the Council and Committee is very inadequate and passes over many of its activities entirely. Lack of space forbids the mentioning of many who aided vastly but the conscious knowledge of patriotic duty well done remains with them and is their reward for all time.

THE COMMITTEE.

THE DRAFT BOARD'S WORK

PURSUANT to the Selective Service act of May 18, 1917, Sheriff Frank W. Wickerham was appointed chairman of the Washington County draft board, his associates being John C. Watson and Dr. E. M. Hazlett. This board divided the county into five districts, the territory composed of Washington, East Washington, and adjacent townships being called District No. 1. Members of the local board were Sheriff Wickerham, chairman; A. W. Clemens, secretary, and Dr. E. M. Hazlett, medical examiner. These men entered upon their duties promptly and remained in service until honorably relieved in May, 1919. They were assisted by a number of clerks including Misses Mary Delaney, Gretta Rhom, and Helen C. McNary, Julius P. Miller, Charles B. Bigger, and John L. Grimes, the last two being soldiers.

An advisory board was appointed to assist in the medical examinations and at first consisted of Dr. A. E. Thompson, Dr. L. D. Sergeant, and Dr. David Beveridge. In June, 1918, all three members of the advisory board entered service and their places were taken by Dr. W. J. Burns, Dr. W. S. Grimm, Dr. J. A. Patterson, Dr. J. A. Maxwell, and

Dr. L. C. Honesty. Many other Washington physicians served as needed. The local board also called for volunteers to help in the clerical work and response was immediate from teachers in the public schools, court house clerks, stenographers and clerks from professional and business offices and factories. Their assistance was very valuable. Among the attorneys who helped with questionnaires from the first were A. M. Linn, James P. Braden, and James M. McBurney. Later all members of the Washington Bar helped in this important work. County Solicitor James P. Eagleson was appointed Appeal Agent for the board.

Registration on June 5, 1917, was 2,802; June —, 1918, 262; August 24, 1918, 41; and September 12, 1918, 4,170, a total of 7,275. The first three registrations were of men between the ages of 21 and 31 inclusive; the last was of men between the ages of 18 and 45 inclusive. The first draft contingent left Washington on September 5, 1917, and the last one left September 18, 1918. In all a total of 1,052 men were sent to the colors by the board, of whom 971 were accepted for service and 61 rejected for physical reasons. All of them did their bit in the winning of the war.

THE FOUR-MINUTE MEN

The Washington County Four-minute Men were organized as follows:

County Chairman

W. E. Slemmons, Washington

Town Chairmen

H. A. Jones, Washington

Lloyd E. Flint, Monongahela

Geo. B. Sprowls, Claysville

R. C. Cassidy, Burgettstown

Prof. Frank Field, California

Dr. A. N. Booth, Bentleyville

J. W. Shidler, Marianna

There were fifty-two other speakers who were available all the time, and part of the time twelve more.

Always the Four-minute Men were ready to present in the theaters the great issues of the war as given by the National Director, in all the great campaigns for bonds, for the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Thrift Stamp and Thrift Certificate campaigns, the Shipbuilding Campaign, and the other campaigns for helping our fellow men to authoritative information on the purposes and conduct of the War, from the side of the United States. By permission Four-minute Men spoke in churches and at other meetings when it did not interfere with the regular work in the theaters. From our records we estimate that audiences aggregating 500,000 were addressed thus in Washington county during the existence of the Four-minute Men's work as an organization.

Besides many smaller meetings three notable patriotic meetings were held in Washington under the direction of the county chairman, working with the Pennsylvania Council of National Defense and Committee of Public Safety, namely: all in the Auditorium of the High School Building; a meeting on the evening of December 7, 1917, addressed by Lieutenant Macquarrie, of the British Army, in which he searched the consciences of his audience by telling of England's entrance into the war and by exhorting us to speed up and not allow the fruit of unpreparedness to bring disaster to the great cause of freedom in which we had joined to uphold the Allies; a meeting on the evening of April 6, 1918, addressed by Major McLean Watt, chaplain of the Gordon Highlanders, in which he held his audience spell-bound by the recital of the heroisms of his regiment, known as "The Black Watch"; a meeting in February of the same year, addressed by Hon. George R. Wallace, of Pittsburgh, in which he gave an illuminating analysis of the causes which led up to the war and in which he set before us our duties as to the help we should render the fighting forces. At this meeting, also, talks were instructively given by Mrs. Owen Murphy on food conservation and by Mr. J. M. Smith, of the Electric Reduction Company, on the saving of fuel.

These meetings were of great value as inspirers and sustainers of the patriotic spirit.

For more than eighteen months the local organization did effective work under the direction of the state chairman, county chairman, and local chairman. Movie theaters splendidly supported the movement, welcomed the speakers, and between reels much valuable information was given to the public in a succinct and forceful talk limited to four minutes. Too much credit cannot be given to the management of these theaters for their encouraging coöperation in every way possible and much can also be said of the receptive mood of the audiences. In addition to these theaters, advantage was taken of every opportunity where a number of persons were gathered together and speeches were made frequently at church services, lawn fêtes, parties, lodge meetings—indeed every occasion that furnished an audience.

All over the county there were enrolled as Four-minute Men the active men in all walks of life and the distinctive button worn by them was a badge of honor and a tribute to their spirit of helpfulness. In every drive made in behalf of the war activities, the services of the Four-minute Men were called upon and the response both by them and by their audiences was inspiring and characteristic of the American determination in battling for the right.

Among the campaigns in which they participated might be mentioned the following:

Y. M. C. A. Drive, Red Cross Membership, War Savings Stamps, Ship Building, Loan of Binoculars, Food Conservation, Income Tax, War Gardens, Liberty Loans, War Savings Certificates, Registration, United War Work, Red Cross Christmas Roll Call, Red Cross Home Service.

The roster of the local Four-minute Men included the following:

Harry A. Jones, chairman; Robert E. Burnside, J. Boyd Crumrine, Vance Booher, H. W. Bloomfield, Rev. R. B. Cuthbert, Hugh Darsie, T. H. W. Fergus, Lloyd O. Hart, Clyde W. Hufford, Howard W. Hughes, Rev. Huber Ferguson, John C. Judson, D. Glenn Moore, Rufus S. Marriner, B. F. Mevay, R. H. Meloy, John H. Murdoch, Jr., R. M. Murphy, T. G. McCleary, W. E. Pickett, Clyde S. Pipes, Alex M. Templeton, Rev. B. Frank Taber, Rev. George C. Sheppard, E. F. Westlake, Smith N. Whitworth, J. C. Stiers, Byron E. Tombaugh.

The organization was disbanded on December 24, 1918, with an expression by the government of its appreciation of the very effective work done. Not only were the actual results accomplished gratifying, but the spirit manifested by the organization is both a pleasing retrospect and an assurance that the future of our great Democracy is in no danger so long as frank and free discussion is had by the public upon questions of national policy.

UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

WHEN the United States Government declared war on Germany the service of the Young Men's Christian Association was offered to the government by Mr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the International Committee. The National War Work Council was immediately organized and plans were made for raising $3,000,000 to carry on the work of the association among the men of our Army and Navy, and on May 22, 1917, under the direction of a committee of which R. W. Knox was chairman. The quota for Washington was $3,000, and at the expiration of the campaign which lasted one week $3,721.86 was subscribed by the people of Washington.

Y. M. C. A. AND Y. W. C. A.

The work of the Young Men's Christian Association grew so rapidly and expanded to such an extent that it was necessary for the National War Work Council to launch another campaign during the year 1917, and this campaign was conducted from November 11-19 to obtain a fund of $35,000,000. Washington County was given a quota of $67,000. A county organization was formed with Joseph A. Herron of Monongahela as chairman, R. S. Winters, treasurer, Lloyd O. Hart, secretary. The Y. W. C. A. joined with the Y. M. C. A., the former receiving fifteen per cent of the total collected in the county. The quota for Washington County was $67,000, and at the close of the campaign the pledges amounted to about $90,000. Washington's quota was $25,000, and at the close of the campaign the pledges amounted to $35,500. One remarkable thing in connection with this campaign was that, with the exception of $68.50, the total amount subscribed was collected. The members of the executive committee for Washington was composed of the following men: R. W. Knox, chairman, R. S. Winters, treasurer, Lloyd O. Hart, secretary, J. D. Bigger, John M. Spriggs, C. H. Lambie, and G. G. Oliver.

The local Young Men's Christian Association extended to all men in uniform the entire privileges of the association without charge, during the period of the war; and each man in the Army and Navy, upon receiving his discharge and by making application, is given three months' free membership.

Besides contributing money to the work seven men gave their service for a period of time in our home cantonments and overseas. The following men served the association overseas: W. L. Reddick, France; A. B. Dunn, France; Robert Good, Italy; Rev. Huber Ferguson, Harry A. Jones, Rev. W. P. McConkey, and J. W. Moninger served in our home cantonments.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

During the early spring of 1918 the Washington Council No. 1083 conducted a campaign for funds to support the Army and Navy work of the Knights of Columbus. The quota for Washington and Canonsburg was $8,000. This campaign was conducted on a monthly collection plan and extended over a period of more than one year. The final results were that a receipt was drawn to Mr. P. H. Wheeler, treasurer, for the sum of $12,307.34.

The local Knights of Columbus also paid a special per capita assessment to the amount of $378.

JEWISH WELFARE WORK

The Jewish people of Washington collected for war activities $250 and in addition to this amount a monthly collection was made by the members of the Hebrew Ladies' Aid Society for a period of about three years.

Washington Lodge No. 576 Independent Order of B'Nai Brith, comprising about fifty members, levied one dollar for each of its members as a war assessment; additional special amounts were contributed for Jewish Welfare Work.

CITIZENS' FREE LIBRARY

The last week of September, 1917, was set aside as War Library week, and Washington was asked to raise $900 as its share of the one million dollar fund for buildings and purchasing books for soldiers in the camps and cantonments in this country and in France. The campaign was under the direction of the curators, assisted by Mrs. Olive W. Grace, who organized a committee of young women to make a general canvass of the town, the results of which were most gratifying. The Library War Council acknowledged the receipt of $1,035.60 to the Library War Fund.

Boxes containing 465 books and 890 magazines were sent in November, 1917, to the Camp Hancock Library. March 18 to 25, 1918 (Nation wide book week) 3,800 books were collected and sent Camp Lee Library.

Books were also given to all drafted boys on their departure for camp, the books to be turned in to the camp library upon their arrival in camp. There has been turned over to Ralph W. Harbison, state treasurer, to date, vouchers amounting to $382,000, which was the quota for Washington County, and the committee in charge feels confident that the total amount reported at the close of the campaign will be received and forwarded to the state treasurer.

SALVATION ARMY

The National War Work Council of the Salvation Army requested the local barracks to raise a quota of $3,000 for the furtherance of their work among the men of our Army and Navy. Through the help of the people of Washington, a campaign was instituted on May 6, 1918, and through the efforts of the committee in charge, of which John L. Stewart was chairman, $3,100 was raised for this purpose.

UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN

At the suggestion of President Wilson the seven organizations, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., K. of C., Jewish Welfare Board, War Camp Community Service, American Library Association, and Salvation Army united in one campaign on November 11-18, 1918, to raise $170,000,000 to carry on the work among these organizations in the Army and Navy. Washington County was given a quota of $350,000. J. W. Moninger, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was appointed county director by the state director of Pennsylvania. A meeting was called by the county director at the Y. M. C. A. Building and the following executive committee was elected: C. S. Caldwell, chairman, R. G. Miller, vice-chairman, Joseph A. Herron, vice-chairman, R. S. Winters, treasurer, Frank H. Berthel, secretary. This committee with G. G. Oliver, Patrick York, Samuel L. Siegel, and the county director traveled over the entire county securing in each area a chairman to be responsible for his particular area, the county being divided into thirteen different areas. Washington's quota was $104,000, and by the very efficient work of C. S. Caldwell, chairman, and a large number of men and women who assisted in this campaign, about $114,000 was subscribed, there being about 8,000 subscriptions.

The total amount reported at the close of the campaign was $385,190.10.

WASHINGTON AND WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

THOUGH the sale of war savings and thrift stamps was continuous in Washington throughout the war, and in fact still continues, the history of Washington and war saving stamps was really written in the remarkable drive in late June of 1918 that ended in whirlwind success on July 4. With the appointment of Frank H. Berthel of Washington as chairman for the western area of the county, organization was completed locally by the appointment of T. D. Vera as vice-chairman and John L. Stewart as publicity editor. Field marshals were named and special chairmen appointed as follows: Lee K. Ward, publicity; Harry A. Jones, Four Minute Men; Richard G. Miller, booster meetings; George M. Thompson, posters and lithographs; Peter McWee, boy scouts; Patrick Curran, fire department.

Headquarters had been established in the Community Building where the Board of Trade greatly aided in publicity and stenographic details. After two weeks of preparation the ten field marshals were appointed in June 19 at a meeting never equaled in Washington for attendance and enthusiasm. So large was the attendance, in fact, that the public meeting room in the court house would not hold the crowd of workers and it was necessary to adjourn to the open lawn. Addresses were made by John L. Stewart on "What War Savings Stamps Are;" by Chairman Berthel on "How to Sell War Savings Stamps"; and by Rev. Frank E. Jensen on "What Have You Done?" The final note of the pre-drive preparations was sounded on the evening of June 21 in the huge parade arranged by Publicity Director Lee K. Ward. George C. Barr was chief marshal and Superintendent J. C. Stiers and Professor E. F. Westlake of the local schools assisted materially.

The drive opened June 22 and gained momentum daily till the high-speed finish on July 3 and 4. Wonderful work was done by the women, particularly in the house to house canvass and at the twenty booths in various parts of the city. The postal officials and employes also did splendid service, aiding materially in the final result. The Independence Day spurt of the last two days was the climax. At the suggestion of Mrs. G. G. Oliver special pledge cards were prepared and subscribers on these days became members of the Independence Day Club. R. M. Murphy and C. M. McAlister made rousing four-minute talks from patriotically decorated floats. The Washington firemen staged the most novel and effective "stunt" of the closing drive, however, when they responded to an alarm from North Main street. There was much smoke but no fire. After a huge crowd had assembled it was announced that a fireman would ascend the ladder one rung for each $5 war savings stamp purchased. Subscriptions poured in and soon every fireman was on the roof of the building and when Chief Curran reached the top rung a Pershing Limit subscription of $1,000 put him "over the top." There were 202 Pershing Limit club members at the finish of the drive.

Of the total of $1,062,413.17 reported for the western area of the county by Chairman Frank H. Berthel, over half came from Washington alone. Just how this wonderful total was amassed is shown in the table below, which contains the special committees, their field marshals and the amounts they raised.

WOODWARD, FRANK, 267 Lynn Ave.—Was inducted into service August 3, 1918. He was sent to Camp Custer, then Camp Grant. Sailed for France in September, 1918.

WYLIE, WILLIAM GIST—Son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wylie, 131 Jefferson Ave. Born June 24, 1898. Enlisted July 16, 1918. Was sent to Plattsburg, and placed with Company E, 2nd Infantry. He was honorably discharged from service September 18, 1918.

The Students' Army Training Corps at Washington and Jefferson College

THE Students' Army Training Corps was a body of draft registrants raised by voluntary induction for the purpose of utilizing effectively the plant, equipment, and organization of the colleges of the land for military instruction and for selecting and training officers and technical experts for service in the emergency which was upon our country, when we found that we were called upon to join our arms with the Allies in the great World War.

Contracts were made with the Government by Washington and Jefferson College for the housing, maintenance, and instruction of students in the Corps, upon the basis of $1.00 a day for housing and subsistence, $.25 for housing and $.75 for subsistence. An allowance for instruction was made with institutions based upon the regular tuition and necessary fees of the institution making the contract. The sum per diem agreed upon for instruction for each man in the unit was $.51.

The students of the Corps were housed in the dormitory and in the "Old Academy" building, few changes being necessary in order to make these two buildings model barracks.

We could have had 410 men in the unit without increasing our housing facilities; and if we had cared to erect barracks, we could have had a unit of at least 600. We chose, however, as being more in accordance with the size of our faculty, and as enabling us to give the men better quarters and more personal instruction, to limit the number to 300 men; with which number we started off on October 1, 1918.

The ceremonies of inaugurating the unit were simple and impressive. The Commandant, First Lieut. Nelson E. Whitaker, had arrived about the third week in September, and had the preliminary work done before the arrival of 2nd Lieuts. J. B. McKeldin, of Davidson College, North Carolina, and Wallace McConaughy, of Carnegie "Tech.," Pittsburgh, who commanded, respectively, Companies A and B of the unit, each company consisting of 150 men. These officers were followed shortly by two other commissioned officers, 2nd Lieut. James C. McGregor, of our own faculty, who came to the Corps as personnel officer, and 2nd Lieut. James Gore King, Jr., of Harvard University, who came as the "small arms" officer. The last four men came directly from the Plattsburg Officers' Training Camp, and Lieutenant Whitaker from the University of Akron, Ohio, where he had had charge of a unit of a thousand men.

On the day set for the inauguration of the Corps, the students were drawn up in two companies on the campus, the flag of our country was raised, the band of the Pennsylvania Training School, which had been engaged for the occasion, played patriotic airs, the proclamation of the Adjutant General of the Army, the orders of the Secretary of War and of the Judge Advocate General, the message of

Gen. Peyton C. March, and the letter of the President of the United States to the budding soldiers were read by Lieutenant McGregor and the following oath of allegiance as soldiers of the army of the nation was administered by the adjutant and subscribed to by the 300 men: "I pledge allegiance to my Flag and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

This was followed by addresses by Lieutenant Whitaker and by the Rev. W. E. Slemmons, the acting president of the college.

The drill began at once and also the physical examinations of the men and the necessary "paper work." Within a week, however, we got down to academic work, and the studies of the boys went on, in connection with the hard military training, with little interruption until the unit was demobilized on December 15. Of course, there was some interruption of the studies of the boys by "kitchen police" duty and guard duty and the other things which the soldier in camp was required to do; but we are to remember that these young men were in the Army and were training for service; and if the war had continued, as everyone expected it would, they would all have gone away to other camps, or perhaps to the war front where all of them hoped to go. Really, a more disappointed lot of men than these youngsters, when the armistice was signed, it would be hard to imagine.

After the close of the Army Corps's residence here, there returned to college 154 of the 300 boys who had been in the Corps. The reason for this falling off was due to a number of causes, among them being the fact that some of the men here were not of college grade, though we admitted none who fell below the minimum requirement in preparatory studies for admission to our college, and, also, the fact that some of these boys came from regions where the nearest college had no military training and returned to their natural place of education after the war was over.

Here in this S. A. T. C. unit was the nearest that Washington came to seeing the sights and sounds of war. As these young fellows went in the early morning and at noon-day and at evening to their "tramp, tramp, tramp" of marching and stood at guard, rain or shine, and went to the various events of the day at the bugle call, our thoughts went to the other boys training in the camps and, above all, to the brave fellows that were already fighting for us on France's and other foreign fields. Seven hundred and twelve of Washington and Jefferson's sons were in the service; 115 students of the last quadrennial period; and 22 gave up their lives on the battle-field or in camp.

Conservation in The War

THE FOOD ADMINISTRATION

"FOOD Will Win the War" was one of the slogans impressed on the minds of all Americans during 1917 and 1918 and the work of the government Food Administration undoubtedly had an important bearing on the successful outcome of the world struggle. Shortly after the appointment of Howard Heinz as state food administrator, James L. Lockhart of Washington was named as Washington county administrator. Assisting Administrator Lockhart were John W. Warrick, chief deputy; T. Jeff Duncan, counsel; Mrs. Owen Murphy, chief of the women's division; Lawrence R. Stewart, chief of publicity; J. M. McKee, chief of production; John B. Allison, and T. H. W. Fergus, chiefs of the sugar division; W. R. Gaut, hotel chairman; J. W. Fleming, lieutenant of bakers; Lewis M. Paul, lieutenant of grocers; Albert Zelt, lieutenant of millers, and R. D. Brady, lieutenant of meat dealers. County deputies were named for the various Washington districts.

The multiform problems that came under the supervision of the Food Administration were cared for by an office force including John I. Carson, chief clerk; Miss Isabel Blair, clerk; Miss Pauline Gessford, executive secretary, and Miss Eleanor M. Miller, stenographer. Miss Elsie Noble of State college worked throughout the county in conjunction with the Washington office. In coöperation with the local food administration was the Washington County War Food Association. Its officers were Joseph B. Spriggs, president; John W. Warrick, treasurer; and Lewis M. Paul, secretary. But 32 penalties were imposed for violations of the rulings of the administration and the fines, which amounted to $2,027.60, were turned into the Red Cross treasury.

THE FUEL ADMINISTRATION

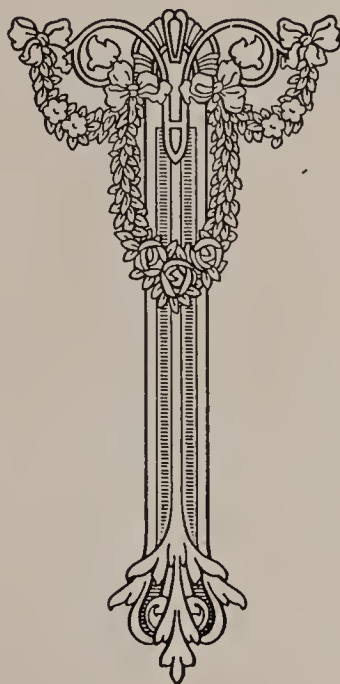

On December 20, 1917, William Potter, state fuel administrator, appointed H. B. Duncan of Washington as county administrator. Under Mr. Duncan's energetic initiative coal prices were regulated and hauling costs apportioned. In the winter and spring of 1918 one lightless night each week was ordered. So successful was this in conserving fuel that later all nights except Saturday were made "lightless." This continued in force till the armistice was signed. In January, 1918, it became necessary to order a three-day closing of all plants except those whose equipment would have been injured. All complied. Administrator Duncan was honorably released from service February 28, 1919. His work was as efficient as any war work in the county.

CONSERVATION OF MATERIALS

Along with food and fuel saving, the conservation of lumber and other raw building material as well as the maintenance of labor in true war work, was taken up actively in Washington. Necessary building was permitted, but only after satisfactory proof had been offered and accepted. This scrutiny enabled the man power of the entire county to be employed in ways most useful to winning the war. To the energy and painstaking care devoted to this work by George F. Drury, Director, its successful administration is chiefly due.

CANONSBURG SUPPLEMENT

Canonsburg's Part In The World War

CANONSBURG'S part in the World War was the part of a patriotic community which has sent its sons to every war in which the American people have engaged. With a population of about 10,000, a little more than 450 Canonsburg boys served in one branch or another between the date of the entrance of the nation into the world conflict and the signing of the armistice. These boys began enlisting immediately after the declaration of war in April, 1917, and they went into every branch of the service, from aviation to the Student Army Training Corps. The bulk of them, of course, were allied with the infantry, but many were in machine gun battalions, in the air service, or in some other branch. Some chose the Navy and still others the Marine Corps.

The greater number going out from the community, however, went through the selective service board. Canonsburg was the headquarters of the Third Draft District of Washington County, and all men sent out by the board entrained at that place. The district included the boroughs of Canonsburg, Houston, and Finleyville, and the townships of Canton, Chartiers, North Strabane, South Strabane, Peters, Nottingham, and Union.

The number of men registering in the entire district on the different registration dates was 7,553, this number including 3,041 aliens. The number of men inducted into military service by the board of District No. 3 was 745. One hundred and fifty-two registrants enlisted without awaiting their call to service.

The draft board of District No. 3 was organized on July 4, 1917, at Houston, which place was, for a few months, the headquarters of the district, it later being removed to the Municipal Building in Canonsburg. Dr. S. N. Dague was elected president of the board and J. Elmer Johnston, secretary, the third member being William J. Reese. Mr. Reese soon tendered his resignation and was succeeded by John L. Cockins. Owing to ill health Mr. Cockins tendered his resignation on September 1, 1918, and Governor Brumbaugh appointed Thomas M. Reese as his successor.

Beginning in July, 1917, the board held examinations on two or three days each week in preparation for the time when contingents would be sent to the National Army training camps. The first contingent, representing five per cent of the district's quota, entrained for Camp Sherman on September 8, 1917. Those going at that time included Charles Campbell, Stanley Joseph Taylor, Arthur E. DeWalt, Hugh Brock, Frank G. Simpson, William C. Houston, Henry Louther, Jules Mathot, Stanford G. Gibson, Howard Taylor, James Jay VanEman, and Lon Blaine Wilson.

SELECTIVE SERVICE BOARD'S WORK

This contingent was followed on September 21, 1917, by eighty-one men, whose destination was Camp Sherman. Ninety-four men entrained for the same camp on October 6, and thereafter at frequent intervals other contingents quit their paths of peaceful pursuit in order to defend their country. The largest number of men leaving Canonsburg on any one day was on May 25, 1918, when 143 entrained for Camp Greenleaf, Georgia. Throughout the summer of 1918 many other men from Canonsburg and various sections of the Third District entrained for the various camps.

On every occasion when the men were leaving the patriotic people of Canonsburg gathered at the railway station to bid them Godspeed. The scenes witnessed on those occasions were similar to scenes throughout the entire country. Bands played, children marched, and cheers were given as the train moved away.

The last contingent that gathered at the draft headquarters of District No. 3 was on the evening of November 11, 1918. The armistice with Germany had been signed early on that day, bringing the war to an end; but the men had been notified to appear, and no order countermanding the call was received until the selectives, about thirty in number, were ready to take up their march to the train. Then the annulling order was received, and the men returned to their homes.

Of the almost 750 men called into service by the Canonsburg draft board, less than a dozen failed to heed their summons. In some of these cases their notices, sent through the mail, had failed to reach them, so that not more than eight or nine could be termed slackers. Several of these were later arrested and sent to camp.

The number of men sent to the various camps was, as stated, 745. The number of these accepted at camp was 681. Of this number 522 were placed in the general service; 15 were classed as remedials; 20 were limited service men; 20 were disqualified.

The board was confronted with a very large number of registrants who claimed exemption from military service. The greater number of these claims, however, were refused by the appeal board which had its headquarters at Greensburg, Pennsylvania. There were 1,060 deferments on claims of dependency, 139 for agriculture, and 139 industrial claims were allowed. It is but just to say that a majority of the men summoned made no claim for exemption.

LIBERTY LOANS ALL OVERSUBSCRIBED

But it was not only the furnishing of men for the various branches of the national defense in which Canonsburg met the call that was made upon her. In every one of the five Liberty Loans the allotment for the community was oversubscribed.

In the First Loan no quota was given Canonsburg, but the subscriptions totaled $181,700, and the number of subscribers was 938. In the Second Loan, put on in the autumn of 1917, the total subscriptions made through the banks of Canonsburg were $544,850, or an over-subscription of the town's allotment of $171,550. The number of subscribers to the Second Loan was 2,570.

The Third Liberty Loan had 5,771 subscribers in Canonsburg; the allotment was $419,750; amount subscribed, $724,300; oversubscription, $305,350. The Fourth Loan was oversubscribed by $197,300, the total subscriptions being $1,094,500, against a quota of $897,300. The number of subscribers to the Fourth Loan was a little more than 7,000.

In the Victory, or Fifth Liberty Loan, Canonsburg was given a quota of $643,900. This amount was oversubscribed by $129,800, the total subscriptions to this loan being $773,700.

The total subscriptions at Canonsburg for the five Liberty Loans were $3,318,350, made through the First National Bank and the Citizens' Trust Company, the two financial institutions of Canonsburg.

Success in Canonsburg's going over the top in all the Liberty Loans was largely due to thorough organization. The town and surrounding country were carefully districted, and a systematic canvass was made in all these districts under the general direction of a committee headed by Mr. C. C. Johnson, president of the Citizens' Trust Company of Canonsburg, who also was the district chairman and one of the vice-presidents of the Council of National Defense for Washington county. He was ably assisted by business and professional men who worked faithfully before and during each of the loans.

The house-to-house canvass was made by a committee composed of women. The general work of the women in Canonsburg and immediate vicinity was under the direction of Mrs. C. C. Johnson and Mrs. Charles W. Campbell.

In the various industries, where large subscriptions were made, the soliciting was done by committees selected from the employees. Both in industrial plants and in the mines 100 per cent subscriptions were made during all but the first loan.

LABOR SHOWS LOYALTY TO NATION

Canonsburg is a manufacturing town, and thousands of men are employed in the various industries and other thousands in the coal mines in the immediate vicinity. There workmen displayed a most loyal spirit throughout the months this country was engaged in war, thereby backing up the men who were at the front or at camps in this country preparing to go overseas. There were no strikes or walkouts, but all united in doing their utmost to help the country win at the earliest possible date.

War material was produced by a number of the manufacturing concerns, including the Standard Tin Plate Company, which employed more than 2,000 men. The Fort Pitt Bridge Works manufactured sections of ships for the merchant marine, under the general direction of the United States Shipping Board. One of these vessels, launched in December, 1918, was named the "Fort Pitt Bridge," and the launching at Hoboken, New Jersey, was attended by officials of the Fort Pitt Company.

The Canonsburg Steel and Iron Company manufactured portions of airplanes, making shipments almost every week during the last year of the war. The Standard Chemical Company had contracts for the making of acids used in the national defense and also for parts of airplanes.

CASUALTIES AMONG CANONSBURG BOYS

Five Canonsburg boys were killed in action during the war: Andrew Kerr Cunningham, July 15, 1918; Morgan Carter, July 23, 1918; John Rudy, September 29, 1918; James Perry, October 13, 1918, and Anthony De Vitti, October 22, 1918.

One died of injuries received in a train accident at Philadelphia, April 24, 1918. He was Joseph Secori.

One, Francis Marion Carter, died of pneumonia in France, October 19, 1918. He was a brother of Morgan Carter, who was killed in action three months previously.

Four boys from Canonsburg or immediate vicinity died of disease at camps in this country. They were: Guy Welsh, at Camp Greene, North Carolina, February 2, 1918; Gordon Vincent Little, at Camp John A. Wise, Texas, October 19, 1918; David O'Brien, at Camp Sherman, Ohio, October 25, 1918; Thomas Wilkinson, at Camp Oglethorpe, Georgia, October 26, 1918.

Thirty of the young men who went out from Canonsburg and who reached the firing line were wounded. The first of these, and the one most seriously wounded, was Hobart Donaldson, a member of Company 76, Sixth U. S. Marines, who was hit by a piece of bursting shell at Chateau Thierry, June 6, 1918. Some of those wounded were later sent home and discharged at camps in this country; still others recovered and rejoined their regiments.

Belford R. Lawrence was taken prisoner by the Germans in October, 1918, and released about two months after the signing of the armistice.

Morgan Carter and Francis Marion Carter, both of whom died in France, one from an exploding shell and the other from disease, were brothers, being the only children of George W. Carter.

When it is considered that 450 men entered the service from Canonsburg and that only five were killed in action, five died from disease or other causes, and that but thirty were wounded, it will be found that the casualty list was small. The Marines were engaged at Chateau Thierry and many of those attached to the infantry regiments participated in the hard fighting in the Meuse-Argonne drives during the closing weeks of the war.

MUCH WORK DONE BY THE RED CROSS WOMEN

The Canonsburg Auxiliary of the Red Cross was busy throughout the period of the war, and during the eighteen months that this country was at war the women of Canonsburg made and shipped 60,000 surgical dressings, 2,628 hospital garments, 1,023 knitted jackets, 902 pairs of socks, 350 pairs of wristlets, and 450 comfort bags.

These figures will convey some idea of the work done by the Red Cross Auxiliary while the country was at war. Three hundred and fifty men who left Canonsburg for the army camps were outfitted with jackets, socks, wristlets, and comfort kits. In addition to this work, the auxiliary in October, 1918, sent to the Belgian relief 8,800 pounds of clothing.

Mrs. Park Snodgrass was chairman of the auxiliary during almost the entire period of its activities, and Miss Mary H. Barnett was cashier and campaign manager for the three drives for Red Cross funds. Ralph Martin was treasurer. For the Christmas campaign in 1917, $2,476 was raised and 2,300 members obtained. For the first war fund in May, 1918, Canonsburg was allotted $1,200 and responded with $2,400. In the Christmas roll call of 1918 $3,501 was given and 3,786 members enrolled. The school children became interested in the campaign, and enrolled 1,000 junior members of the Red Cross.

Many letters received from the men in service expressed thanks to the Canonsburg branch of the Red Cross for articles sent them.

During the first year of the war the Canonsburg branch of the Navy League did a large amount of work for soldiers and sailors and presented the men leaving for camp with knitted articles. Mrs. Charles W. Campbell was president of the organization until it was amalgamated with the Red Cross.

MOTHERS OF DEMOCRACY ACTIVE BODY

The Canonsburg group of the Mothers of Democracy was organized June 6, 1918, at a meeting in the high school building. A large membership was soon enrolled and various activities carried on. Remembrance meetings were held on the second Friday evening of each month, at which time the boys in camps held a similar service. The idea originated with the men of the Three Hundred and Nineteenth Infantry at Camp Lee, Virginia. The Mothers took a military census of Canonsburg in September, 1918, and on the twenty-first of that month dedicated a large service flag, containing 450 stars, representing the number of men from Canonsburg who entered the various branches of the service.

The officers of the Canonsburg group, Mothers of Democracy, for the first year of the organization were: President, Mrs. William H. Fee; first vice-president, Mrs. David G. Jones, second vice-president, Mrs. John Perry; secretary, Mrs. D. M. Bell; treasurer, Mrs. A. T. Turner. The organization is to be maintained permanently.

HOME DEFENSE POLICE ORGANIZED

Company B of the Home Defense Police was formed in Canonsburg early in 1918, under authority of an act passed by the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1917. John N. Pew was chosen captain and T. M. Recse and W. A. Leroy, lieutenants. The object was to maintain order in case of uprisings by the disloyal element, and to assist the civil authorities. The company disbanded after the signing of the armistice.

The Four-Minute Men, acting under the Council of National Defense, did good work during the various drives for Liberty Loans and Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. campaigns. Among the more active of these were William C. Dougherty, Thomas J. Jones, D. H. Fee, and F. W. McVay.

The signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918, brought to an end the activities of the various war organizations. The coming of peace was celebrated informally on the night of November 11. This was followed the next night by a formal parade, in which hundreds of persons participated.

Canonsburg's formal welcome to her returned soldiers, sailors, and marines took place on July 4, 1919, when a parade in which several thousand persons, including the service men, was held. The parade was followed by a program of speechmaking and music, and closed with an elaborate display of fireworks. Taken all in all, Canonsburg's part in the world war was honorable, patriotic, and creditable.

In Pennsylvania the new one per cent general sales tax went into effect to raise about $15,000,000 for unemployment relief.

Simultaneously the State's unemployment relief program to provide 1,500,000 jobless became effective.

The emergency relief sales tax brought a general increase in the price of tangible commodities. A penny was added here, a dollar there.

Rich and poor alike bear the burden of this new levy which will be in effect for a six months period. The banker, the street-sweeper, the coal-miner, the lawyer, the brick-layer, the broker, all must "chip in" to care for the State's destitute.

Furniture, foodstuffs, cigarets, soft drinks, clothing, automobiles, radios, shoes, hats, cosmetics, coal, newspapers, gasoline, and all other tangible merchandise come under the new tax.

State authorities already have decreed that utilities, transportation companies and amusement concerns are exempt from the provisions of the tax. The law especially provides that agricultural produce sold directly by the
